Dear Guests,

It gives me great pleasure to welcome you to Select Life Magazine as we begin our sixth year of publication. As you might recall, the global pandemic in 2020 disrupted many of our lives and businesses in countless ways. Thus, life in a post-pandemic world is much different than it used to be.

Spring is the season of new beginnings, which is why now is the perfect time to reintroduce you to Select Life Magazine. STELLA'S WINE BAR

SIP AND SAVOR TASTES
FROM AROUND THE WORLD

Tucked away in the southeast corner of the Five Star, Five Diamond Post Oak Hotel at Uptown Houston, Stella's Wine Bar is Houston's newest and most alluring wine destination for both casual wine enthusiasts and serious oenophiles. Undoubtedly a destination of its own, Stella's Wine Bar is also located mere steps from Mastro's Steakhouse, Willie G's Seafood, and Bloom & Bee, providing the ideal venue to commence your night with an aperitif while awaiting your dinner reservation or for ending your evening with a nightcap.

The spirit of Stella's Wine Bar is embodied in its name, derived from the Fertitta family's beloved pet pig, Stella. Sweet Stella possesses all the traits for which pigs are renowned, including great intelligence, inquisitiveness, and an affinity for social enjoyment.

Explore both the new and familiar in a convivial atmosphere with world-class wine resources on-hand to share as little or as much as you want to know. This can all be experienced how Stella loves it best: relaxing in the shade under the tree on our secluded outdoor patio allowing you to sip and savor the unmatched beauty of amazing wine.

Designing the wine experience for Stella's Wine Bar at The Post Oak are Master Sommelier Keith Goldston and Advanced Sommeliers Julie Dalton and Shaun Prevatt.

Julie Dalton is Stella's Wine Bar Wine Director, and she sat down for a Q&A that's sure to enlighten and inspire you.

Q & A

SL: Can you explain the significance of the extensive wine selection that is offered at Stella's Wine Bar and what makes it so distinctive?

JD: A lot of really great wine bars have about 100 or so wine selections to offer both by the glass or bottle. For us, we have access to tap into The Post Oak Cellar, which is one of 100 wine lists in the world to hold the prestigious Wine Spectator Grand Award. To hold the Grand Award, a list must have extensive selections covering regions across the world with lots of vertical depth (multiple vintages of the same wine). At Stella's, we have about 75 wines by the glass and a wide array of wines by the bottle available in the bar itself for bottle purchases, but if a guest wants something from the 'Big List', they can have that too. It essentially means the guest has more options than they might know what to do with!

SL: How does the team's level of talent correlate to the overall success of Stella's Wine Bar?

JD: Sometimes having more options than they know what to do with is the perfect opportunity for our staff to step in and have a conversation with the guest. As sommeliers and people who have worked with wine for many years, our team has extensive experience in helping guests make a decision from a massive list with multiple options. Essentially, having a staff of people knowledgeable in wine eliminates the chances of 'paralysis by analysis' of our massive menu - when there are so many options someone might just throw their hands in the air and say, 'you know what? Just bring me a beer!' Nothing against beer, of course!

SL: As the wine director, what are some ways you try to ensure that there is "something for everyone" at Stella's?

JD: Again, having access to over 4,000 wines varying in grape, style, region and price; there literally is something for everyone. Want cheap and cheerful and delicious? You got it. Want to drink some of the rarest and most highly allocated wines? You got it. Want your tried and true every day wine you probably also have at home? You got it. Want to try something you've never seen before? We can definitely do that. Not feeling like having wine? We gotcha covered.

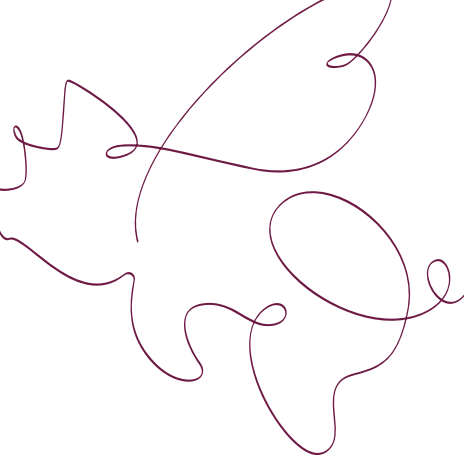

SL: What is unique about the experience that visitors can expect when they come to Stella's Wine Bar?

JD: It's easy to feel intimidated when a wine list of this size and caliber lands in your lap. I have personally made sure that each person on the floor is a humble steward of wine knowledge. Our staff is not here to pontificate or show off how much they know about wine. We will all speak your language and we will not intimidate.

SL: How does the aura of Stella's Wine Bar differ from other wine bars?

JD: The aura of Stella's Wine Bar is really special! We are tucked into the corner of Houston's finest hotel, The Post Oak Hotel at Uptown Houston. Our guests are surrounded by luxury, but the bar feels cozy and approachable. Care to peruse lay of Rolls Royces and Bentleys with your glass of wine? Please, go ahead! Would you rather put your feet up and chill out on the patio and read a book? By all means, go ahead!

SL: Is there anything else you would like to share about Stella's Wine Bar?

JD: The most expensive bottle of wine I've ever tasted was Domaine de la Romanée Conti 'Romanée-Conti' 2011 and it was $20,000 for the bottle. And yes, you can drink it at Stella's!

WHERE BEAUTIFUL OCEANFRONT MEETS HISTORIC PARADISE,

Hunting Inn dwells in the heart of East Hampton, New York. In a purchase made by Tilman Fertitta to acquire the Palm restaurant steakhouses, this remarkable retreat was included in the deal, adding to Landry's Inc. growing list of hotel properties to date. This unique property brings with it a tale of its own. Before it was the Hunting Inn, it was a family home built in 1699 by the second Presbyterian minister of East Hampton, Reverend Nathaniel Hunting. The family residence was home to his wife Mary Green and their ten children. In 1751, to aid her husband in supplementing income and to help raise their ten children, Mary Green opened the home as a public house. The home gradually expanded externally and internally with time through renovations and additions, soon becoming one of East Hampton's most popular bed and breakfasts.

During the Revolutionary War, the inn was known as the neutral territory between the Americans and the British, the only neutral territory on the South Fork. From heated poker games to friendly greetings, Hunting Inn lived on for nine generations under the Hunting possession before being sold in 1939 to Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Froot. Eventually, the Palm Restaurants group took over management.

Now, Tilman Fertitta is carrying on the Hunting namesake, bringing to East Hampton decades of success in hospitality and restaurant management. Under Fertitta's ownership, as of 2022, the property has undergone exciting renovations to enhance the Hunting Inn experience while also maintaining the conventional elements that carry on the property's history and identity. Some of the early framing wood, embellished with chamfers and lamb's tongue finishes, is visible in the southeast rooms on the first and second floors. Rooms have been modernized with new and enchanting furniture, freshly painted walls, and new flooring.

Capture the Long Island, South Shore charm of Hunting Inn by relaxing in the lounge area with the wooded fireplace burning during cool weather months, taking a stroll through the multi-colored garden leading you to neighboring stores in the shopping district on historic Main Street, or enjoying some of East Hampton's most famous beaches, as guests of the Hunting Inn receive beach passes to enjoy the nearby town and village beaches during their stay. The property is a 5-minute drive or 30-minute stroll from Main Beach. Instead of catching a cab or uber, a complimentary beach shuttle is offered if a stroll through town isn't charming enough. Hunting Inn is home to the only Palm restaurant in East Hampton, offering visitors a high-end dining experience both in the restaurant's dining room and in the privacy of their hotel room. The Palm restaurant is well-known for its high-end Italian steakhouse fare, fresh seafood, and diverse wine selections.

The tranquility and coziness of Hunting Inn make it the ultimate getaway for anyone looking to unwind and enjoy themselves. What started out as a family home is now the perfect East Hampton getaway destination for visitors to Long Island.

DESIGNER LIFESTYLE ACCESSORIES

BY JONATHAN FEIGEN

After nearly a decade of going all-in on the pursuit of a championship, the Houston Rockets has shifted to an all-out youth movement to rebuild. With this approach the expected growing pains were evident, however, it has also provided a clear path for the organization's future. The excitement of a successful future Rockets team was apparent when electric rookie Jalen Green, the second draft pick in the 2021 NBA draft, was signed, making him one of the five then-teenagers the Rockets added since the end of the 2020 season. Green, who has produced the longest run of 20-point games for a Rockets rookie since Steve Francis more than 20 years ago, has been the top-scoring rookie in the NBA since February 1, 2022. Turkish center Alperen Sengun, he of the array of fakes and no-look passes, is on pace to be the fourth player in NBA history to average at least eight points, four rebounds and two assists in fewer than 20 minutes, bringing nearly as much excitement as the high-flying Green. Guard Josh Christopher, a late first-round pick in the 2021 draft, adds versatility in the guard position, while forward Usman Garuba and guard Daishen Nix are continuing to get acclimated with their newly found roles on the young team. With these rising stars and last season's additions of Kevin Porter Jr., K.J. Martin and Jae'Sean Tate, the Rockets hope to create a solid foundation amongst the team that will shift the franchise back to chasing championships.

KING RANCH TEXAS KITCHEN: RANCH TO TABLE

BY: SELECT LIFE STAFF

With each enjoyable bite taken at King Ranch Texas Kitchen, the existence of South Texas is evident. From the start, it was Henrietta King’s mission to make the ranch that Captain Richard King built into a home. Over time, Henrietta’s meaning of home became a rich tradition of authentically raised ingredients, sparking a way of life through Texas heritage and delicious cuisine.

W HISTORY:

In the early years of King Ranch, Henrietta’s kitchen seemed to be the only route or point of connection between Corpus Christi and some of the growing towns along the Rio Grande’s commercial corridor when trails crossed the Wild Horse Desert. Throughout revolutionary eras and the cultivation of American cattle and horde breeds, King Ranch hospitably served kings, generals, presidents, and captains of industry, all while serving the Kineños, the working men and women who built the ranch from the ground up. The conversation was lively among all, and all were fed well.

W TODAY:

Today, King Ranch Texas Kitchen embodies the same authentic spirit of South Texas hospitality that Henrietta King found essential to a successful ranch home, by paying attention to details, quality, and creating meaningful experiences. From farm to fork, meats like beef, nilgai, and quail are homegrown on the ranch, and the proximity to the Gulf Coast allows fresh seafood to be on your table at a moment’s notice, served with locally sourced produce that will taste as Mrs. King picked it from her own garden. Every bite is deeply rooted in the history of King Ranch tradition. Every table is the launching pad for conversations, conflicts, resolutions, families, and friendships. The King Ranch Texas Kitchen experience is one that comes as close as possible to dining in Henrietta’s Kitchen and one that will foster moments and memories that will last a lifetime.

THE CULTURED EATERY MARKS
TEXAS HERITAGE IN A UNIQUE AND DELICIOUS WAY.

W NILGAI SEASON:

Nilgai has become a common sight in the South Texas region and an even more popular game to enjoy when authentically prepared in the Texas kitchen. In the early 1900s, the Asian antelope was a rarity to come by in the coastal prairies of the South Texas region, as they are originally from India and Pakistan. In the early 1900s, it is said that Caesar Kleberg, the head of King Ranch, worked with the San Diego Zoological Garden (now the San Diego Zoo) to reestablish native wildlife on his range. As a result, the nilgai species was introduced to the region of South Texas on King Ranch land.

Due to Nilgai’s hefty size and instinct to roam, they began to naturally spread to other ranches. Now, an estimated 30,000 nilgai can be seen in wild herds from the outskirts of Corpus Christi to nature parks in the Lower Rio Grande Valley more than 150 miles south. All year-round, King Ranch Texas Kitchen exemplifies the ranch-to-table meaning by featuring on the menu special nilgai dishes that are homegrown on King Ranch, then perfectly prepared in the kitchen for superior Texas taste. Special nilgai menu features include the King Ranch Nilgai with Chile-Lime Marinated South Texas Antelope Medallions, Chimichurri, and grilled mushrooms; or the King Ranch Chicken Fried Nilgai smothered in grilled onion and mushroom gravy with mashed potatoes.

Don't be alarmed when the lights dim, as it is the arrival of the Rainforest Café thunderstorm. Every 20-30 minutes, the restaurant transforms into its element as the lights dim and all the animals come to life making sounds, moving around at the sound of thunder.

SPARKLING VOLCANO DESSERT

A dessert this massive comes with a grand arrival to match. Before you dig into this enchanting dessert, get ready for your safari leader (waiter) to partake in a sparkling volcano ritual. With striking sparklers lit, as it arrives at your table your safari leader will shout out "VOLCANOOOOO" as other safari leaders join to echo the words throughout the restaurant.
